Our department combines clinical expertise and a passion for teaching with rich and rewarding careers. Faculty members are responsible for preparing and mentoring current and future generations of health professionals. Instructors are critical players in assuring quality educational experiences that prepare professional healthcare workers for careers in a diverse, constantly changing healthcare environment. They are the leaders who guide students through the learning process and who document the outcomes of educational programs.

Qualifications:

- Current registration with the C.R.N.B.C.
- BSN in Nursing preferred
- Current CPR level "C"
- 5 years recent clinical experience working in gerontology preferred
- Experience teaching adults, preferably in a college setting, and experience with curriculum development would be an asset
- Strong communication skills and collaborative approach to problem solving
- Commitment to the scholarship of teaching; willingness to actively participate in a learning-centred College environment while promoting excellence in care practice
- Ability and desire to acknowledge, understand and embrace the diversity within our community and treat others in a spirit of dignity, respect, compassion, honesty, openness and inclusiveness
