1. In school
2. In the Community

Is the EACS Program Right for You?

The role of the Education Assistant and Community Support Worker demands adherence to high standards of personal and professional conduct.

Employers expect sensitive and helpful responses to a wide range of problem situations, learning environments and behaviours.

- The work may involve participation in school and community settings, recreation activities, wellness needs of individuals.
- Both classroom and field work require a professional way of being with behaviours and attitudes that require us to challenge personal beliefs and values.

EACS Student Expectations:

To be open, willing to give and receive feedback, critically evaluate their own performance and make themselves available for individual, online, group and virtual schoolwork and working with classmates outside of class time for some projects.

To deal with interpersonal communication, resolving conflict and negotiating, in a context of diverse opinions and learning styles, in mature and productive ways.

Program Participation Requirements

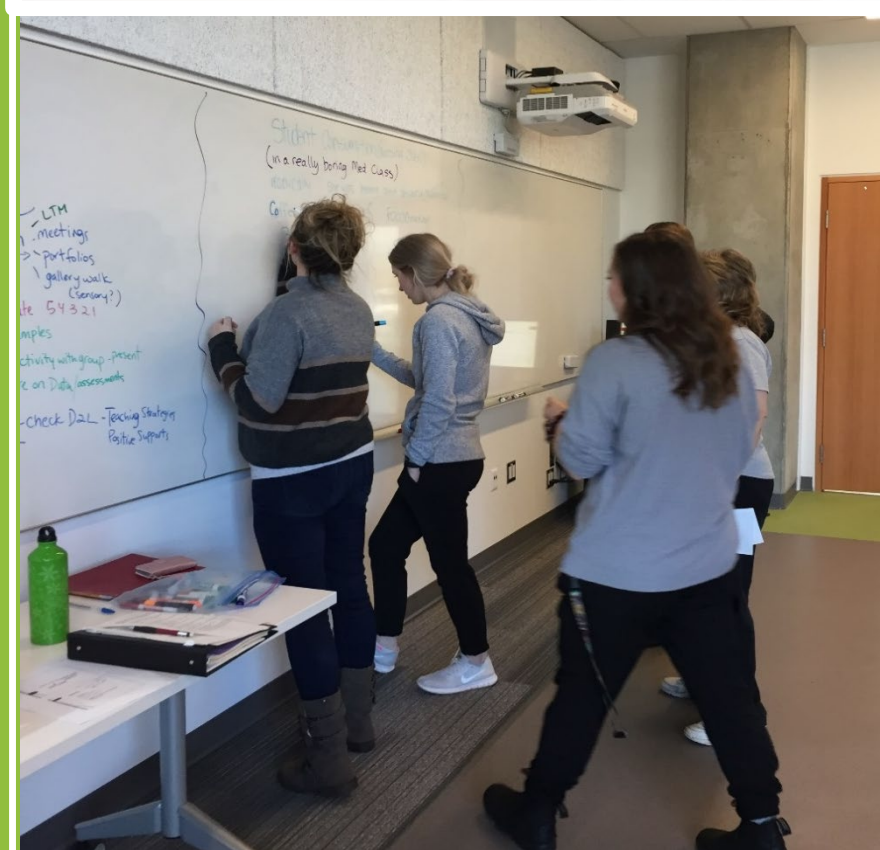

Once accepted into the program, students will be required to complete the following:

- Current immunizations
- Criminal Records Check
- TB skin test (Might be required by your practicum site).

Please note these are program requirements and should not be done before you have an accepted seat.

EACS Classes are Student Centred Learning

- Groups
- Individual
- Hands on
- Virtual and Online

Employment

GRADUATES work as part of a professional team in:

- community, home, school, and day program settings to support children, youth and adults with developmental disabilities.

CAREER paths include a range of community-based positions:

- education assistants, residential counsellors and job coaches.

EMPLOYERS include:

- non-profit and private organizations, public and private school settings, as well as families and persons with disabilities.
